Assignment TV

By TERRENCE O'FLAHERTY

High on my list of The Most Revolting Things on Television are the children in the commercials — the ones who can't brush after every meal, the artificial little girls who hawk products in a high voice, the icky little boys with their front teeth missing — and they drive me from the sponsor's product like a swarm of insects at a picnic. If they all were sent to reform school tomorrow, I wouldn't shed a tear. I'd even be willing to provide the transportation.

But there's a whole crop of child actors in the new shows who seem to be worthy of more humane treatment. I find the young boys on "Please Don't Eat the Daisies" to be pleasant, lively and well-mannered. They are more intelligent than most of the other video serial mopes and in many ways they're the backbone of the show. The young twins are Joe and Jeff Fithian, Kim Tyler and Brian Nash. I'd welcome them around my house any time. (Well, let's not go THAT far!) They're on NBC Tuesdays at 8 p.m.

THE CHILDREN in "Lost in Space" seem to be made of plastic from the old moulds of "The Donna Reed Show" or "The Danny Thomas Show." Lost in space is where they deserve to be. (Angela Cartwright, Billy Mumy, and Marta Kristen.)

The kids of "My Mother the Car" are forgettable. Who knows that may be the best way to have them. So is the show, I'm afraid.

The kids on "The Big Valley" are older than the others but they're juveniles anyway in the best "Bonanza"-Cartwright tradition. (Didn't sons EVER get married and leave home in the Old West?) In "Big Valley" Mother Stanley has one daughter and four sons. The daughter (Linda Evans) is my leading candidate for white slavery this season — beautiful but impossible. The eldest son is Richard Long who is fatter than he was in "Bourbon Street Beat" but he's a better actor now. Peter Breck, formerly of "Black Saddle" has also grown in acting as well as chins. Charles Briles hasn't done much yet. Lee Majors as the illegitimate son proves that holy matrimony isn't necessary for acting. He steals the show.

THE YOUNGSTERS on "OK, Crackerby" are supposed to be the homely, spoiled, and stupid children of the newly rich tycoon who was so busy making money he never had time to develop a sense of humor. The children were faithfully cast. The boys are fangtoothed and freckled. The girl (Brooke Adams) is older, say 17, and she's awkward now but I suspect she will grow into an unusual kind of beauty. I have a hunch she's growing too fast for the shows. Already they've told the writers not to write shows involving the tutor and Miss Adams too intimately. It might be misconstrued to mean romance.

Youth Corps Has 75 Trainee Jobs Open

The Neighborhood Youth Corps "Out of School Program" now has 75 trainee jobs in the Torrance area according to June C. Roper, manager of the local office of the Department of Employment.

This program provides gainful, part-time, employment for out-of-school youths between 16 and 22 who have been unable to find work. Youths enrolled in the Neighborhood Youth Corps will perform socially useful and necessary work. They will work four hours a day, five days a week and will be paid $1.27 per hour during the duration of the training period.

The type of training is varied. Youths may work for a government agency, public institution, or a non-profit organization. The jobs include clerical aides, librarian aides, maintenance aides, recreation aides, combustion engine repair helpers, structural worker helpers, landscape assistants, animal caretakers, social service aides, hospital aides, pump maintenance helpers, auto painting, repairing and other mechanical helpers.

Any interested youth should inquire at the Department of Employment office located at 1016 Sartori Ave., and ask for information about the N.Y.C. program. Generally speaking, qualified applicants will be hired for periods of employment up to six months on N.Y.C. jobs. In some cases requirements of work experience will allow longer periods of employment.

Anesthesia Training Now Open

Applications from men and women for anesthesia training are now being accepted by the United States Air Force, Sgt. Raymond Stauble, local Air Force recruiter, announced today.

To be accepted, applicants must be under 28 years of age, a citizen of the United States, and currently be enrolled in an approved school of anesthesia.

Persons accepted by the Air Force will attend their final year of anesthesia training at the expense of the Air Force and, upon graduation, serve a three-year tour of duty as a commissioned officer. Selection and appointments are made by a committee representing the Surgeon General of the Air Force.

Sgt. Stauble said interested persons may secure information by calling the local recruiting station at FA 8-1404, or by visiting the office at 1616 Cabrillo Ave.

Enrollment Hits 15,023

New enrollment figures at El Camino College show that 15,023 students are enrolled for the 1965 fall semester, Leo Christian registrar, has announced.

Attending either day or evening classes, or in some cases both, are 5,334 women and 9,689 men.

Freshmen, numbering 10,498, and sophomores, 3,128, comprise the majority of the student body with a remaining 1,396 unclassified.

Registration figures indicate a large percentage of students will transfer from El Camino to a four-year college or university after two years of study.
